Introducing KNOWLEDGE BLOCKS.

We curate a selection of fundamental shapes, blending and aligning them to express our brand's personality and ethos. These shapes are already utilised across our presentations, games, infographics, and more. Each shape symbolises subjects and learning blocks that, while independent, can also combine to create various forms, such as career paths. Learning and knowledge are foundational, yet the results can be extraordinary and diverse. The blocks represent us as a platform, providing the tools and opportunities for learners to become whatever they aspire to be through imagination and creativity—our core brand values and purpose. We can combine these shapes into patterns for games or even create block toys as rewards for students.

Three Different Use Cases for Blocks

This tier is reserved for high-level branding applications such as company documents, business cards, corporate websites, contracts, and presentations. It should strictly adhere to a limited palette of brand colours and design elements to maintain a cohesive and professional identity.

At this level, a broader range of colours and even playful design elements can be incorporated to make key highlights stand out. This approach is ideal for product-level designs, such as brochures, posters, and profiles, and is also applicable for high-level branding, websites, and social media posts.

At this level, we have more creative freedom, allowing for the transformation of blocks into characters with added personality, poses, and expressions. This approach is ideal for use in our game products, social media content, student engagement materials, banners, posters, and similar contexts where a more dynamic and engaging design is appropriate.

02

The design of CORPORATE LOGO.

NEW

The new design features brighter colors, rounded edges, and a flatter appearance, giving the logo a modern and simpler look. The blue color is aligned with the Pocket series. The flatter design works better across various media and materials, yet it still looks like a refined version of the old logo.

The icon is created from one rectangular block and three circles of increasing size. The red block symbolizes our platform, serving as a base or foundation. The circles represent a time loop, where a ball lands on the platform and bounces higher and larger. This ball symbolises students or users growing stronger, more skilled, and better in their field as they leverage our platform. The bounce forms the shape of a tick mark, conveying positivity, growth and achievement.

LOGO USAGE.

Explained

Most of the time, the logo should be used on white and light-coloured backgrounds with safe margins, as shown in the example.

For darker backgrounds, photos, videos, watermarks, or instances where the logo needs less attention, we can use a reversed logo (off-white).

Additionally, use a contrast checker to evaluate the visibility of the logo on coloured backgrounds. If the contrast score is too low and the logo becomes hard to see, switch to using the solid white version for better visibility.

How to use our LOGO ICON.

The logo icon is commonly used for app icons and is also suitable for placement in presentation corners where space is limited, providing a subtle yet effective branding touch.

In addition to app icons and presentation corners, the logo icon can be effectively used in several other contexts to enhance brand visibility and cohesion:

1.Website Favicons: Small icons displayed in the browser tab next to the website title.

2.Social Media Profiles: Profile pictures or avatars for social media accounts.

3.Mobile and Web Application Icons: Icons for software and applications on both mobile and desktop platforms.

4.Email Signatures: Incorporating the logo icon into email signatures for a professional touch.

5.Business Cards: Adding the logo icon to business cards to reinforce branding.

6.Merchandise and Promotional Items: Using the logo icon on branded merchandise such as pens, mugs, and T-shirts.

7.Digital Watermarks: Applying the logo icon as a watermark on digital content like videos, images, and documents.

8.Small-Scale Advertising: Utilizing the logo icon in smaller advertisements where full logos might not fit, such as banner ads or social media ads.

9.Stationery: Incorporating the logo icon into letterheads, envelopes, and other office stationery.

10.Software and System Icons: Using the logo icon for custom software or system tray icons.

Primary colours.

Our primary design uses a dominant colour paired with white. For Knowledge Platform (KP), the dominant colour is red with white, and these should be the primary colours used across all materials. For product logos, apply the main colour shown on the left to ensure consistent branding. This approach keeps the overall brand look clean and unified.

Secondary colours.

#000000

#7F7F7F

#BFBFBF

#F2F2F2

Our secondary colors are primarily used for text, headings, tiles, lines, and similar elements. They range from black to light gray. These secondary colors should complement, rather than overshadow, the primary color to maintain consistent branding.

COLOR EXTENTION.

While sticking to the main colour palette, you are encouraged to explore variations within the colour tones depending on the context or use case. You are not restricted to using only one colour range. For instance, in Bonzo, we used blue as the primary colour for buttons, the website, and branding elements, but we incorporated a variety of colours in props and icons to make the game interface more lively and engaging.

BRAND PALETTE.

Here are the detailed guidelines for colour usage on a single page. These recommendations focus on how to effectively apply both primary and secondary colours, allowing flexibility in their proportions depending on the specific context and purpose of the page. Adjust the colour percentages as necessary to fit your design requirements.

These recommendations can also be applied to other products with designated brand colours, ensuring consistency while offering room for creativity where needed.

TYPO USE CASE.

How to combine

To ensure consistency across all our documents, we've chosen Poppins as the primary font for body text. For headings, we typically use Poppins or Nunito depending on the context. In some cases, such as posters, banners, or student-related content, we allow for more creative variation in font choice. For example, Fredoka Semi Bold has been selected as the main title font for our product Bonzo to add a touch of fun and personality.

ICON SAMPLES.

Icon standards.

Use solid white color icon on red, to save time and effort, I would recommend to use PPT icons which they already have a huge list. Go to "Insert" > "Icons" search or select icons needed. They will have 2 type of icon: 1. solid color. 2. line. I would recommend to use solid one which has more weight and better contrast against our green color.
